YWCA Metro Vancouver achieved considerable growth and diversification throughout 2017. We continued to support our communities with innovative programs and services while advocating for systemic change to help realize our vision of achieving women’s equality.

With help from our generous supporters, the YWCA achieved many milestones this year, including opening the doors of a number of new housing communities.

YWCA Cause We Care House – built in partnership with the City of Vancouver and the Vancouver Public Library – is now home to 21 single mother-led families. YWCA Como Lake Mews, a seven-unit townhouse development adjacent to YWCA Como Lake Gardens in Coquitlam, opened in Fall 2017, as did YWCA Cheshá7min-awtxw – which features nine units in the City of North Vancouver. We give thanks to the Squamish Nation for helping us name Cheshá7min-awtxw (the mothering room). This name recognizes the Coast Salish peoples and their traditional, unceded territories.

In Winter 2018 we look forward to opening the doors of YWCA Pacific Spirit Terrace – a 31-unit housing community developed in partnership with the City of Vancouver and Vancouver Fire and Rescue Services. The YWCA has also partnered with Chard Development Ltd. to build 14 units of affordable housing in the City of North Vancouver, with completion expected in Summer 2020.

We were honoured to receive the BC Non-Profit Housing Association’s 2017 Housing Provider of the Year award. This award recognizes the YWCA as an innovative non-profit housing provider that continually adapts to the dynamic needs of Metro Vancouver’s communities.

Universal early learning and child care continued to be an advocacy priority for the YWCA in 2017. We launched our Child Care Now Campaign in the spring, which called on the provincial and federal governments to work together to find a solution to BC’s child care crisis. Second to housing, child care is the highest monthly expense for families with young children. Our campaign raised awareness on the benefits of a universal system, which will advance women’s equality and offer a major economic opportunity for BC.

Our employment services continue to provide training and job opportunities for thousands of people across Metro Vancouver. We are particularly proud of our specialized programs for women, newcomers and survivors of violence. We launched YWCA Pathways to Leadership in early 2017, a free, seven-month program for immigrant single mothers that offers information on employment, education and training resources, as well as five months of flexible mentorship and a guided project on civic engagement.

The Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities awarded the YWCA’s WorkBC Employment Services Centres the highest level of accreditation that can be given to an organization. By achieving this accreditation, the YWCA demonstrates that it meets international standards for client-centered services and addresses the unique needs of each person we serve.

The YWCA Beatty Hotel / Residence and the YWCA Health + Fitness Centre continue to fund vital YWCA programs, support the financial stability of our organization, diversify our funding streams and position the YWCA as an important contributor to the local economy.

This annual report highlights the many ways we collaborate with our donors, partners and other stakeholders across Metro Vancouver to provide vital programs and services for single mothers and their families. Whether we are building safe, affordable housing or advocating for a system of inclusive and affordable child care, the YWCA is investing in women and children and helping to change our communities for the better.

Sincerely,

Geri Prior

Interim CEO
“I remember my child having a beautiful Christmas last year despite coming out of a very difficult situation and going through lots of transition. I remember Munroe House staff coming to the hospital even though I was no longer a resident there and visiting me after my emergency c-section with my second child. I remember that a year later, my child is still receiving art therapy support from Munroe House staff. And every day that I wake up and see the beautiful life my family now has, I can’t believe how blessed we are. But I know it was Munroe House that took me from fear and uncertainty to safety and beauty, thank you!”

- Former resident of YWCA Munroe House
